
and Japanese held a meeting this afternoon in a final desperate attempt to meet Mr. Snowden's demands.

In view of the serious results in continuation of the impasse and possible rupture of the conference at the end of the week unless the deadlock is broken, the four creditor powers are said to have made considerable headway toward getting to concrete proposals to offer the British.

Italian Loosen Purse Strings.

Italy offered certain definite concessions which it is ready to make for the common cause, and Belgium and Japan reiterated their former offers. France rejected the readjustment schedule 52 per cent—8 per cent allocation toward whatever the others contribute.

Added to this was a pool of a large portion of marks resulting from the overlapping of the Dawes and Young plans for five months, amounting to a total of more than $50,000,000, of which Britain can now make available to hand over to Great Britain.

The four creditor powers and Germany, however, failed to reach any agreement over increasing Great Britain's portion of the reparations. The delegates discussed deliveries in kind and unconditional annuities, and then decided to reconvene at 10 tomorrow morning.

The German representatives, Rudolf Hillebrand and Julius Curtius, had been called in. They were urged to increase the amount of unconditional annuities above the $157,000,000 per annum the Young plan provides in order to give Great Britain a slice, however small, of the $50,000,000 available after the Dawes International loan interest is paid. France gets $15,000,000. It was suggested that if the sum was boosted to $165,000,000 Great Britain might get the odd $9,520,000.

British Issue Statement.

The British delegation tonight gave out a cleverly worded viewpoint regarding London's attitude toward the Young plan for the proposed superbank. The exposé is aimed to stifle reports which are current that Mr. Snowden intends to hamstring the international bank of the reparations payment and leave it merely a glorified office boy disbursing reparations in monthly transfers from Berlin.

The statement says the British are accused of demanding a revision of the payments allocation merely as a camouflage, and that their real objective is to prevent creation of the superbank.

Deny Accusations.

"It is not necessary to reiterate that Great Britain's financial claims are based on the elemental considerations of justice and fair treatment. Satisfaction is necessary before further progress can be made in the conference," says the exposé. "These claims are in no way connected with the bank scheme, which the British believe they must deal with in due course on its own merits."

The British delegation views with the greatest sympathy the objectives underlying the bank scheme and hope the proposed institution may contribute to a closer cooperation between the central banks of the various countries regarding such questions as control of gold and gold reserves.

"Such a proposal as the British may eventually put forward will be directed to promote the usefulness of this sphere."

Would Limit Bank's Scope.

Thus the British definitely limit the bank's activities to those prescribed areas and definitely eliminate specified fiscal operations and clearing house transactions for the bank which the sponsors, J. Pierpont Morgan, Owen D. Young, and Thomas W. Lamont dreamed of.

Other delegations point out that it is a fundamental that the European powers would never consent to the establishment of the international bank in London and that has aroused Lombard street's financial powers against allowing the bank to grow into a mammoth, powerful institution, part of whose profits would be expected to be able to cover the German reparations during the latter years of the Young plan.

GERMANS REACH LIMIT

BY SIGRID SCHULZE.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BERLIN, Aug. 22.—"If the Hague conference breaks up without German consent to a complete Rhineland evacuation and complete reparation settlement," said a German foreign office authority tonight, "the disappointment will probably be so great as to endanger the position of Foreign Minister Stresemann and the entire cabinet. But not even that will induce us to make the slightest further concession."

"We have gone the absolute limit. There is no statesman in all Germany who will dare to cede an inch more, for we have agreed to pay up to the full limit of our paying capacity. Therefore, if any one imagines he can still get us to accept the Young plan or any other account from our people, he is mistaken. The Young plan is the utmost limit and it must be permanent. We are not having any temporary coming into force of the Young plan as a stop-gap."

BORAH WARS ON TARIFF AS BLOW AT AGRICULTURE

Democrats and Radicals Join Fight on Bill.

BY ARTHUR CRAWFORD.

(Chicago Tribune Press Service.)
Washington, D. C., Aug. 22.—[Special.]—Bombardment of the revised Hawley-Smoot tariff bill commenced today from within Republican ranks. Senator William E. Borah (Rep., Idaho), asserted the bill as framed by Republicans in the senate finance committee was better for agriculture than the house bill. He announced his intention of renewing his fight on the floor of the senate to eliminate all increases in rates on industrial products.

Senator Smith W. Brookhart (Rep., Ia.), predicted that the measure would be rewritten on the floor of the senate. He expressed confidence that an export debenture amendment would be continued until Sept. 4.

Senator Borah in his blast against the revised bill insisted that the special session was called solely to deal with the problem of agriculture.

The attacks made it evident that the radical Republicans will be found joining forces with the Democrats in attempts to riddle the bill on the floor of the senate.

The Republican members of the finance committee insisted that some of the administrative provisions of the house bill, as soon as these sections are printed they will be turned over to the Democrats who will have about ten days in which to study the entire bill before the senate commences its consideration on Sept. 4.

The full membership of the finance committee will meet on the morning of Sept. 4 to take formal action on the bill. The Republicans will vote solidly

Lay Plans to Market Grain at Chicago Session Monday

St. Paul, Minn., Aug. 22.—(AP)—The organization committee of the new Farmers' National Grain corporation called to meet Monday at Chicago, will be asked to discuss steps to alleviate the acute crop marketing situation in the northwest. This was announced here tonight by M. W. Thatcher of St. Paul, assistant secretary of the corporation.

With a nine day embargo on barley, oats and rye effective at midnight tonight on all northwest railroads, Mr. Thatcher said the organization committee would be urged to ask that existing marketing facilities in the market associations be conscripted to permit the federal farm board to extend immediate relief to the grain producer.

Call Situation Acute.
"Had the Farmers' National Grain corporation begun functioning under the federal farm board ninety days ago," said Mr. Thatcher, "the price of wheat would be 50 cents higher today."

Acuteness of the present situation, in the opinion of Mr. Thatcher, lies in the fact that the producer and small elevator operator have no means of paying current harvesting and marketing bills without dumping their grain on the market at this time.

"Take, for instance, a farmer, forced to sell enough of his crop to pay his bills, is making a tremendous sacrifice in the price he gets for his crop."

Will Attend Meeting.

(Chicago Tribune Press Service.)

Washington, D. C., Aug. 22.—[Special.]—Five members of the federal farm board, including Chairmen of the under Lieut. Col. W. E. Dennis and W. F. Schilling will attend the meeting of the executive committee of the Farmers' National Grain corporation in Chicago next Monday, according to an announcement today.

for it and the Democrats against it. The senate held a perfunctory session today lasting for about two minutes and adjourned until Monday. The three day recesses are to be continued until Sept. 4.

Senator Borah in his blast against the revised bill insisted that the special session was called solely to deal with the problem of agriculture.

My opinion of the bill reported by the senate finance committee convinces me that there is very little difference between the two bills insofar as they affect agriculture," said Senator Borah. "If either bill is passed agriculture will suffer the same inequality, the same injustice, that we were pledged to remedy."

Some Changes Ineffective.

Senator Brookhart, who has just returned to Washington after a speaking tour in a number of states, said he had heard constant criticism of the tariff bill from farm groups.

"I hope the standpatters have had a nice vacation from their tariff bill," said Senator Brookhart. "We will tear it to pieces on the floor."

Senator Brookhart said that the export debenture amendment, as it will be carried out by the enactment of either one of these bills,

"Those who have the interest of agriculture at heart and those who befor the issuance of debentures only to the farm board, which would pass them on to the stabilization corporations which export farm products.

Insists on Debentures.

The debentures would be redeemable by the treasury at face value instead of being accepted by the treasury in payment of customs duties.

Senator Brookhart said that Frank O. Lowden had approved the debenture scheme in this form and had decided that it might be a method of absorbing losses incurred by the farm board in stabilizing prices.

The People's Legislative service, in its statement, said, that "Senator Smoot's defense of the bill does not attempt to conceal the fact that its adoption will inflict a heavy burden on the average citizen."

High Powered Lobbyists.

"The debenture defense that Mr. Smoot is able to make for the rates proposed is that they will take a few less millions from the pockets of the consumers than would the house bill," continued the statement. "Even this decrease fails before a fair analysis of the rates of the senate bill. It will show that they were dictated by and are for the exclusive benefit of manufacturers who had the ears of the senators and congressmen."

"The handiwork of Grundy and other high powered lobbyists is discernible in such changes as have been made in the chemical, earth and earthware, metals, cotton, woolen, and other schedules."

"In the main, reductions made by the finance committee will reflect no change in the average citizen."

The People's Legislative service, in its statement, said, that "Senator Smoot's defense of the bill does not attempt to conceal the fact that its adoption will inflict a heavy burden on the average citizen."

Democrats Take Credit.

Jouett Shouse, chairman of the executive committee of the Democratic national committee, commenting on yesterday's action of the Republicans on the finance committee, said that the opposition of the Democrats to the bill was responsible for "abandonment of some of the worst provisions."

"The provisions of the house bill, that sought to alienate from congress the final authority on tariff legislation, a function reserved for the legislative branch of the government by the constitution, was an alarming step in the long struggle involving encroachment of the executive on the other branch of the government," said Mr. Shouse. "It would put into the power of the President a power weapon, too powerful to be entrusted to any organized labor. One would have from entry of a bill into the chamber, proposed and passed by American firms and distributed in this country. The other would prohibit the entry of convicted as well as convict-manufactured products."

Senator Kenneth McKellar (Dem., Tenn.), said that the Hawley-Smoot bill "is the work of lobbyists instead of legislators."

Another broadside was at the Cuneo zoning amendment yesterday in the form of protest sent by the Builders' Association of Chicago. William R. O'Toole (13th), the city council building committee.

NEW BROADSIDE FIRED AT CUNEO ZONE AMENDMENT

Building Managers Find Act Discriminatory.

BY CARL WARREN.

Another broadside was discharged at the Cuneo zoning amendment deal yesterday in the form of a letter of protest sent by the Building Managers' Association of Chicago to Ald. William R. O'Toole (13th), chairman of the city council building and zoning committee.

The letter, signed by President John T. Redmond, followed the adoption of a resolution by the organization's board of directors denouncing the amendment as a "special rule" for the benefit of a few individuals. It demands that the amendment be withdrawn and cancellation of the permit of John P. Cuneo, who proposed under its provisions to build a sixty story skyscraper at Michigan avenue and Randolph street.

Will Continue Building.

A second development in the zoning controversy yesterday was an announcement by Barnet Hodges, attorney for Mr. Cuneo, that his client has "not the slightest intention" of abandoning his project, despite an anticipated court battle. Mr. Cuneo is convinced his permit is airtight, Hodges asserted.

Mr. Redmond's letter, like the statements of other civic groups, stressed the fact that the Cuneo amendment is discriminatory and was adopted on the quiet.

The amendment admittedly limits the benefits of this legislation to certain parcels of land. In the letter it is stated: "It would open the way for the use of other devices to describe other particular tracts of land that might enjoy special advantages. Such proceedings are a departure from the general rule of equality that citizens expect from the application of laws and ordinances. If any change is to be made in allowable building heights it should be by general and not by special rule."

Cites Law of 1923.

The 264 foot limit as provided in the zoning ordinance of 1923 was agreed upon after an extensive study and much public discussion on the subject of building heights. It is now presumed to have settled this question permanently. We believe it is undesirable to make any changes in this fundamental principle unless there is a full and free public discussion and an opportunity for an expression of public sentiment.

The letter pointed out that under the 1923 ordinance, buildings could go no higher than 264 feet with the proper setbacks. Mr. Cuneo's amendment makes setbacks unnecessary if the property faces a park or waterway.

The amendment in effect permits the use of a small plot to certain public spaces for pictures. The letter continued: "This means that open spaces maintained at public expense are capitalized for the benefit of a few individuals."

No Need for Change.

"Since the adoption of the 264 foot limit many noteworthy buildings have been built and Chicago has enjoyed an orderly development." Many of our new buildings are among the world's most striking examples of fine architecture. There is no economic or

START MEMORIAL TO SAVE OLYMPIA, DEWEY FLAGSHIP

(Picture on back page.)

BY A STAFF CORRESPONDENT.

Bass Lake, Ind., Aug. 22.—[Special.]

—Residents of this Hoosier section, where the battle of Manilla hero, Capt. Charles Gridley, was born, met today on the shores of this pleasant lake at which he spent many of his boyhood days to memorialize congress to save the Olympia, Dewey's old flagship.

The three men swagged into the office, and, according to the police, presented themselves to two officials, Marion Gould and George Zeaman, in this town.

"I'm from the state's attorney's office," said Druggan, "and these men are from headquarters. It'll cost you $25,000 to open an office here."

Fisher jerked open his coat, and calmly laid the other need for any change in allowable building heights in Chicago."

Mr. Redmond said he believed his association, in its demand for action to right the injustice of the Cuneo amendment, represents the views of a great majority of the property owners in the downtown district.

The battle of Manilla, against the amendment from civic, business, and architectural groups during the last few weeks has not swerved Mr. Cuneo in the least, according to Attorney Hodges.

Finds Procedure Regular.

"The amendment was passed in a perfectly fair and legal way," Hodges asserted. "It has been upheld by the zoning board of appeals. Every step has been regular, plain and the whole procedure will be sustained in the courts. Mr. Cuneo is going to put that building."

Hodges asserted that his client will sustain damages amounting to $2,000 if he is balked on the tower project now. Approximately this amount, he said, will be spent in legal expenses in the first place, building contracts, the cancellation of leases in the building now on the property, and in other items, including the expense of litigation thus far.

He added that Mr. Cuneo is not at all interested in the probability that the council will repeal the amendment when it removes it in September. "The repeal cannot be made retroactive," he declared. "That means that Mr. Cuneo will erect his building regardless of the council's action. The effect of a repeal would be merely to reserve to him the privilege of putting up a monumental structure, while delaying it to owners of other property similarly located."

Glacier Park Believed Safe from Forest Fires

Missoula, Mont., Aug. 22.—[Special.]—Deplored on a mile wide front, crews combed tonight to fight a forest fire in the northern part of the flathead and Blackfeet forests, which had threatened Glacier National park. Park officials announced today that the fire had not reached scenic areas and had swept away from Belton and the park administration buildings. It was believed that fire was about under control.

Woman Crushed to Death by Bull Without Horns

Brazil, Ind., Aug. 22.—[Special.]—Going to the pasture of her home near Center Point today to drive in cows, Mrs. Adam Hart, 42 years old, was attacked by a hornless bull while it was ever, crushing her to death with its massive head. Attracted by her mother's screams, Frances Hart attempted to draw the bull's attention, but failing, she bravely dragged her mother, who weighed 200 pounds, to a fence. The bull continued to ram Mrs. Hart, and she soon died.

SEEK 'TAX FIXER' AS MORE CLIENTS TELL OF LOSSES

Beyers' Operations May
Exceed $110,000.

Detectives sought in vain yesterday for David D. Beyers, real estate agent and self-styled tax adjuster, as complaints multiplied from those who said Beyers victimized them. Assistant State's Attorneys William Mercer and Franklin Cattin said indictments against Beyers would be asked within a few days and messages were sent throughout the county letting Beyers as a fugitive.

Attorney Max Rappaport notified the prosecutors that he had intruded two clients who had the impression he promised to have their taxes reduced. They have learned that the payments were not made, according to Rappaport. The clients are John J. Krings and Thomas Chick.

Grand Jury to Get Checks.

Checks totaling $2,500, which they gave to Beyers and which Beyers cashed, are to be presented to the grand jury. Mercer said indictments will be asked on two charges of embezzlement. Mercer said the indictments, if returned, would start a series of prosecutions in the Criminal court and relieve all complainants of the necessity of going to the Municipal court for warrants.

Merger said he now believes Beyers probably had $110,000 in his safe at first estimated and that he may reach $500,000. Beyers' accounts have been seized and all his transactions are being examined.

Recalls Old Tax Case.

Assistant State's Attorney Leonard J. Mandel, assigned to the East Chicago avenue police court, recalled a case pending there in which Beyers was defendant on a charge of obtaining money under false pretenses. His bond was forfeited and he finally appeared in court and a motion to vacate the forfeiture was continued to Sept. 3. This complaint grew out of a promise by Beyers to secure a tax decree for Walter Noye, 105 West Monroe street, and involved $1,600 which Noye paid to Beyers.

Another paid to Beyers a check for a fraudulent check was to have been heard yesterday in Elmwood Park but Beyers failed to appear. At his office at 40 North Dearborn street it was said he had not been there in a month.

ENTIRE LENGTH OF OHIO STREET PAVING OPENED

Ohio street was opened yesterday for the entire length of its new widening and paving from Lake Shore drive to Orleans street. The stretch had been closed almost continuously since early spring.

Following months of delays, the city, Hall and the contractor, the White Paving company, recently issued a number of erroneous dates for the opening and even yesterday a number of local improvements appeared in ignorance of the situation. A telephone inquiry to the board office brought the information that Ohio street "will be opened tomorrow." This was several hours after a newspaper photographer found all the barriers removed.

DEATH A MYSTERY

DRYS CAPTURE 2 IN TUNNEL AND LADDER CHASES

Find Stills at 506-510
South Clark Street.

Cravling through a muddy tunnel, forty feet underground, and descending a rope ladder in search of two elusive bootleggers, were all a part of the day's work for Chicago prohibition agents yesterday. Both chases were successful.

The scenes of the pursuits were in two buildings at 506 and 510 South Clark street, just opposite the present headquarters of the Chicago board of trade. Word reached Assistant Prohibition Administrator George H. Hurlburt in the afternoon that several stills were operating in both buildings. There were little more than one block from the dry headquarters in the Transportation building. Hurlburt dispatched a squad to look into the matter.

Find Two Distilleries.

Mary Kresczezowski, pretty 22 year old factory worker, was strangled to death after having been attacked on the night of July 27 on a lonely country highway north of Kenosha. That was the opinion given today by Coroner A. B. Schmitz, following the report of the autopsy made by Dr. C. E. Pechous. The physician found no bruises on the head, body, legs or arms. Her torn dress and bloomers indicated that she had been attacked.

No arrests have been made since the discovery yesterday of the badly decomposed body in a ditch on the Birch road. Police are questioning several persons who were known to be friends of the dead girl. One of these was Victoria Pawinsky, a chum, who was Beyers' girl friend. She was "getting tired of working in a shop, and was out to have a good time." The statement was made in the afternoon of the day that the girl went to a dance at Racine on the night of her death.

Seize Fugitive in Tuske.

During the four days, the agents crawled out after another, into the hole and scrambled through the winding passage until they found two squirming figures at the end of the tunnel. The two were separated, and at the conclusion of the return trip, a surly bootlegger, who gave his name as John Scarino, was arrested nearby.

Next down the hill part of raiders and their surly, scurrying through the hallways of the third floor, and gave chase. Their victim dived down a skylight and, leaning over its edge, the agents found a rope ladder leading to the second floor. They clambered down and began exploring.

In one room a man was apparently in a struggle with another, and fell from the bed. He wore all his clothes and his heavy shoes were covered with whisky mash. He gave his name as Frank Fura. Both prisoners will be arraigned before United States Commissioner Walker this morning.

POLICE TO START 2 DAY ATHLETIC MEET TOMORROW

Preparations for the eighth annual athletic games of the Chicago police department were complete last night and the contestants ready for the start of the events tomorrow afternoon. The program will include track events, drills by policemen on foot, motorcycles and horseback riding, chariot races, and a number of novelty acts. A similar program will follow on Sunday.

The program of the two days will be given to the Polhemus Benevolent association which provides for the dependents of policemen killed in performance of their duty. Payments of approximately $300,000 will be made this year, according to predictions.

The program each day will open with a parade of all contestants, officials and spectators, followed by the opening ceremony.

The procession will be led by Commissioner Russell, George F. Geitz, chairman of the citizens' committee; Stephen O'Meara, president of the benevolent association, and Edward J. Kelly, president of the south park board.

SMUGGLERS HOLD UP TRAFFIC AT DETROIT BRIDGE

Detroit, Mich., Aug. 22.—[Special.]—The Detroit river rum-smuggling industry caused a traffic blockade on the West Fort street Rouge river bridge at 8 a.m. today, according to motorists who attempted to cross the bridge at that hour.

Two speed boats with 100 bags of whisky each swung into the river Rouge and pulled up against the bank. Four autos and a crew of a dozen men awaited the boats' arrival.

For 10 minutes there was feverish activity as the shore crew unrolled the whisky and the drivers of the autos.

The workers paid no attention to the cheers of 200 motorists and pedestrians who watched the proceedings from the bridge. They did their work and let the public wait.

Col. Boots Arrives by Plane for Wedding Today

(Picture on back page.)—Accompanied by a party of eleven relatives and friends, Col. N. J. Boots, vice president and general manager of Roosevelt flying field in New York, arrived in Chicago yesterday by airplane for his wedding to Miss Louise Fitch, widow of the late Harry Fitch, 5422 Hyde Park boulevard. The ceremony will be performed at noon today in the First Presbyterian church.

Sales Manager WANTED

by large Eastern manufacturer of popular-priced candy. Must be aggressive, resourceful, able personally to sell volume accounts and direct a well-organized national sales force. We want a man who will dig into our extensive line, analyze our market, create workable sales ideas and help us to build a big business.

Boys parties began searches for the stills, opening the basement, an entrance was discovered, and one agent was chosen to explore its length. It was muddy and wet, but there was no choice, so the agent disappeared on his hands and knees. Several minutes later his friends, grouped around the entrance, heard the sound of a scuffle.

BOND BID 'FIX'
'Influential' Mystery
Annoys Commission

John Bain, chairman of the Park board's finance committee, declared yesterday that the commissioners are investigating the action of "mysterious strangers" who have been represented as intent on "fixing" the bid for the $9,500,000 bond issued by the South Park board on Wednesday's meeting.

Although the identity of the unknown, Mr. Bain said formerly was connected with able investments banking firms, he has recently been absorbed by the South Park board.

"Fixing" Called Ridiculous

Frank Gordon, vice president of the Union Trust & Savings which headed the syndicate that bought the $9,500,000 bond, complained that "fixing" by "interested parties" was a bad idea. The bids were sealed, he said. Foreward, the "fixer" was expected to a him, Mr. Gordon was prepared but he failed to appear.

Recalls Mobiling In April

Mr. Bain said that last April some man approached him as chairman of a committee concerning the South Park $9,500,000 bond issue for the Wissahickon museum. His was so absurd and his get-rich ambitions so transparent, according to Mr. Bain, that he was dismissed as a laughing stock. Because of his maddening insistence, the commissioners are now anxious to solve him.

Unable to agree on an ordinance of mechanical regulation, the council public health committee yesterday adjourned for a definite period. NOVICE DRIVER SEIZES TRUCK; LANDS IN JAIL

Blames Whole Transaction on Prohibition.

BY TOM PETTEY.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]
New York, Aug. 22.—[Special.]—
Charley McCabe got to thinking today and when one of the highland country McCabes gets to thinking there's always action.

Charley has been a mule Skinner since the marines in Belleau Wood ran out of corned willy. He knows all-about horses, too. Not the kind that so often are featured on page 1 of the sports extra, but the kind that will pull big loads and will pull near been trucks. But Mr. McCabe did not know any more about motor trucks than a bachelor does about baby carriages and that how he got into enough trouble today to last him until next St. Patrick's day.

Seeks Field In Brooklyn.

The horse and mule piloting business is on the decline in New York, so Mr. McCabe having heard somewhere that Brooklyn had less advanced ideas about the horse and mule breeding industry, set out to see for himself. He found the automobile crash had preceded him across the bridge and after dodging motor trucks for a couple of hours, stopped in at a refreshment parlor to refresh himself. When he was sufficiently refreshed, he began driving again.

It was five minutes later in Brooklyn that he decided to become an automobile truck driver. He had the idea but no truck. Mr. Stanley Lewansky of the Vanderbilt avenue (Brooklyn) Lewanskys had the truck, but no breakfast. The coincidence provided the starting mule Skinner with a new little green and one-half ton gravel truck, the master of passenger being accomplished while Mr. Lewansky was spooning his honeydew melon in a nearby lunch wagon.

Time For Decisions.

Mr. McCabe swayed gravely about his next move. He had to times long assumed no one in particular of trying to push him into the driver's seat. Important decisions were being born in his mind. He was about to take a step upward in life. He finally took both the step and the truck when satisfied nobody was looking.

Twisting everything the automobile driver could think of in sight, Mr. McCabe was rewarded by his roar from the engine and soon was careening merrily along on his new career. All of which was an accomplishment in itself, for the ex-mule Skinner never had driven a automobile much less a truck—in his thirty-two years. He had been true to his trade.

Mr. McCabe of the highland McCabes moved into action. He had the idea but no truck. Mr. Stanley Lewansky of the Vanderbilt avenue

Lewansky buried some words and two doughnuts at his departing chariot and the truck was off. The words were drowned in the traffic, the doughnuts were retrieved by a newsboy, and Lewansky was afoot.

Three blocks down the avenue Mr. McCabe encountered a cop, a real live and a traffic jam. Mr. McCabe had to think fast, so he did. Remembering Mr. Greeley's advice he turned right and went west. No one, not even Mr. Greeley's young man ever went westward with greater ease.

Brooklyn motorists and pedestrians seldom dispute the right of way with a seven and one-half ton truck.

Arrives at "Tough" Point.

Mr. McCabe bore a charmed life, and four cops on four automobile running boards bore a look akin to anger as they chased him. The truck lumbered on at what often was a speed of 30 miles an hour, running over speed, pedestrians, smaller trucks, taxis and passenger cars scurried to the sidewalk.

For ten blocks McCabe was king. He moved as other truck drivers often have dreamed of moving. There was debris in his trail and joy in his heart. Then, simultaneously with the four mounted cops and two foot cops, Mr.

McCabe arrived at Flatbush avenue. At the point of impact the avenue boasted of seven converging trolley lines, two subway entrances, an elevated line, and the Long Island railway depot.

Slight Casualties.

Mr. McCabe was just a wee bit nervous. He had an idea he should stop, but he didn't know where to stop. So he continued. No one was hit, but the seven Avenue C cars and eventually would have landed in the surf at Coney Island if he had not overtaken Mr. David Goodman's new sedan. Somehow the sedan got jammed between the front and rear wheels of the truck and Mr. McCabe's first lesson as a truck driver was concluded.

Mr. Goodman was damaged slightly and his car was damaged badly. Tomorrow Mr. McCabe will answer charges of grand larceny, assault, driving while intoxicated, and driving without a license.

Tonight he blamed it all on prohibition.

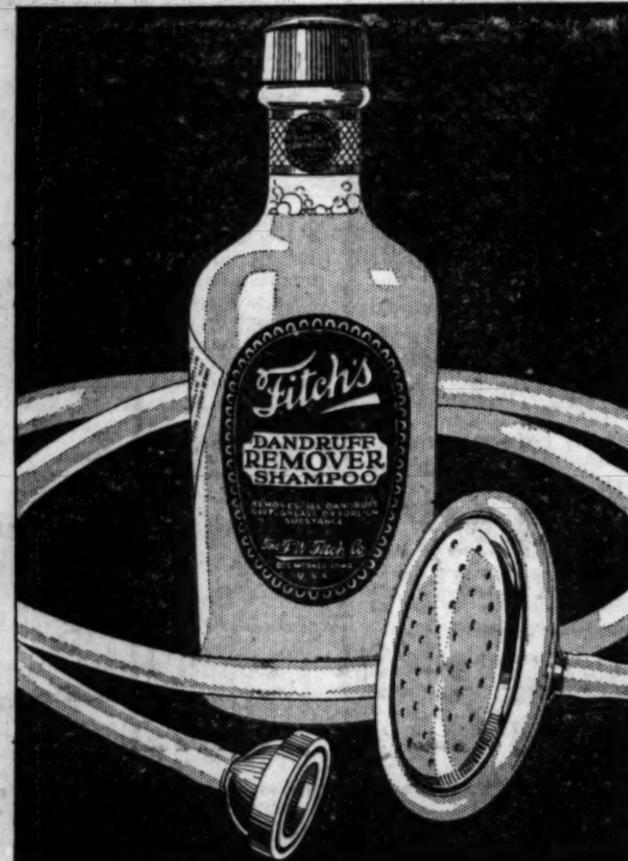

JAILED FOR GUN TOTING.

Elmer Smith, 25 years old, was fined $300 and sentenced to a year in the Bridewell by Judge Max Lester yesterday on a charge of carrying a concealed weapon.

BANKERS DEFINE WHAT IS NEEDED IN GOOD CAR PLAN

provision for city purchase, the bonds would be made good.

"Now we are more enlightened. There must be a reserve to care for bond interest and retirement."

Urge 40 Per Cent in Bonds.

"Would you say that a properly organized company to embrace the surface, elevated and bus lines, with the main lines, would have an attractive market for its securities?" asked Victor Glander.

"Should any organizations be placed upon the financial structure in the ordinance?" asked Mr. Glander.

"I cannot see how you could put any in the ordinance," said the banker.

"There will be limitations, however.

The local transit commission will devise and place them upon the company. The franchise will be a liability as soon as it is granted.

"Do you feel that the more limitation there will be, the better it will be for the service the public demands?"

"The bonds for the new transit company should be so good that no one will ever raise the question of whether they will be paid. There must be reserves for paying the bonds. The trouble with the present bonds of the surface lines is that there is no cash with which to pay them. Twenty-two years ago those in charge of the surface lines ordinance, and others, for that matter, assumed that with the stock. The bonds should have a stable market as to price."

"As stable as government bonds?" he was asked.

"Our own experience with government bonds hasn't been so good lately," said Mr. Otis. "Last year we carried about $50,000,000 of government bonds. The decline in the price of them caused us to write off $750,000 at the beginning of this year."

Provisions for Extensions.

Mr. Otis said that the financial plan should be such that it would permit extensions such as made by the phone, and electric utilities."

"Would you desire a sound and safe financial structure for the transit lines as these are the gas, phone, an electric utilities?" asked Patrick J. Luoy, attorney for the Elevated Lines.

"Yes," replied Mr. Otis.

"But many of the extensions demanded of us will not repay a bond issue and some of them will not pay full operating charges," commented Mr. Luoy.

"You must have a financial plan which will permit reserves for bonds despite extensions," concluded Mr. Otis.

Mr. Carroll asked A. W. Harris whether the securities would be attractive on a basis of 60 per cent bonds and 40 per cent stock, with a sound financial plan and good management.

"It is impossible to make a financial plan which will carry through to another generation," said Mr. Otis. "The next generation will have new ideas and there may be a change in conditions. The plan should be flexible enough to meet changing situations.

Traction Bonds Unpopular.

"This most unpopular, the most difficult security to handle at present is a traction bond. They have been outvoted by the careful investors and the public generally. Popular demand at present is for a common stock. That is the fashion—but fashions change."

"If too close a deal is made for the protection of the public it will absolutely interfere with a solution of the transportation problem. If the deal is too close there will not be enough money left to pay for the service the public demands and wants."

DEGRADATION AT THE DOCKS.

Americans returning from abroad seem destined to suffer ever longer and more irritating delays in passing through the customs at New York. The number of returning travelers increases from year to year, but the number of baggage inspectors does not keep pace. Efforts to bring additional inspectors from other ports where there are fewer arrivals appear to have been unavailing.

Going through the customs is at best distasteful business. Americans suffer it when crossing frontiers abroad and find what comfort they can in the thought that at any rate in their country, with its different conception of government, no such indignities are encountered. They return to America to discover that the examination at foreign places of entry in most parts of western Europe is, relatively speaking, a pleasant experience, to be gone through with relative expedition and courtesy.

The effect of our customs examinations is to make our government odious and bring it into disrepute in the eyes of its citizens. What might at best be a mere inconvenience becomes in reality a degradation. Every traveler is presumed to be a smuggler until he proves his innocence. The scene at the docks is made more offensive by the universal knowledge that tips are customary. The American, returning to his home land, filled with pride in its institutions, quickly discovers that the courtesy and efficiency to which he has looked forward are little in advance of what he might encounter at the Turkish frontier. He has made out his declaration and signed his name to it, but his baggage is mauled over as if he were the meanest of sneak thieves, and he is tacitly invited to haggle matters with what may be euphemistically called a tip. While all this is going on, less fortunate travelers eager to be about their business in their own land are kept standing about like cattle in a corral waiting for some one to release them.

As long as we have a tariff we will need customs inspection, but there is vast room for improving our methods of examination. Some good might come from placing inspectors aboard ship who could clear a considerable part of the baggage while still at sea. More could be accomplished by increasing the number of inspectors where and when required and imposing upon them a code of courtesy and honor. If this results in some increase in smuggling—and it need not do so—the price would be a small one to pay for increased respect which our government would earn from its own citizens and foreigners.

IMPERIAL STATESMANSHIP.

The British proposals to Egypt reveal British diplomacy and imperial statesmanship at their best, and that is the best in the world. Americans must read them with admiration mingled with envy, for when the United States in its important and often delicate relations have the benefit of so much tact, skill, and sane judgment as Mr. Henderson's proposals display.

As Mr. Steel points out, the status proposed recognizes in the Egyptian nation as much of the rights and privileges of independence as is compatible with vital British interests, and we would add, as much as is compatible with the interests of the civilized world, or even the interests of the Egyptian people themselves.

It is the duty of the British government not only to Britain's own great concerns but to the general interest of the civilized world in peace and in free communication that the Suez canal shall be protected at all times and that a region like Egypt on the flank of the world's thoroughfare shall not be a prey to anarchy or a victim of international rivalry. Egypt's international status should be as stable as world conditions permit, and England is its natural guardian. With this major issue assumed, as it must be by all save doctrinaires and impractical sentimentalists, the proposals are obviously both sound and considerate of reasonable Egyptian susceptibilities. The defense of the canal is provided for and assured by British occupation of the adjoining district and of strategic positions to be agreed upon. Egypt is to avail herself of British military training and to employ British officials, if any foreigners at all. There is offered an alliance for mutual defense, with exchange of ambassadors, and a pledge that neither country will follow policies creative of difficulties for the other. Military occupation, except as provided above, will be terminated.

The proposed status is consistent with Egyptian self-respect and is, in fact, the best she could hope for in the situation she inevitably holds in the world, while Great Britain retains such measure of control as her own rights and also international conditions emphatically justify.

The diplomacy of the United States has much to learn from this settlement. We, too, have problems of dealing with weaker or backward peoples, involving factors of premature national aspiration, political incompetence, economic and social instability, and backwardness. Our own diplomacy, invariably well intentioned as it has been, has often been inconsistent, tardy of resolute action, without grasp of essential American interests, and lacking in tact. We have sometimes been able to accomplish important benefits but with little credit and at unnecessary cost. British imperial statesmanship makes its mistakes, but is easily the most judicious and efficient in the world today, and we should study it.

HOW NOT TO REFORM
THE INJUNCTION.

There is a pretty general agreement among disinterested men that the process of injunction and contempt as developed in this country requires revision and restraint. But the bill that has been contrived by three of the radical members of the senate at the instance and with the cooperation of the A. F. of L. is an example of class and special privilege legislation of an extreme type. It in effect abolishes the power of a federal court of equity to protect a citizen from irreparable injury, and we confidently predict, will be interpreted by the less responsible labor leadership as a license to violence.

The injunction is of little or no value as a protection from irreparable injury, from sudden wanton destruction of property and personal violence if it cannot issue, as this bill provides, without the formalities of a trial and proof upon such issues as whether unlawful acts will continue, whether substantial and irreparable injury will follow, whether there is an alternative remedy at law, and whether the public officials charged with the duty of keeping the peace are unable or unwilling to furnish adequate protection. Such a trial would be an elaborate and stubborn contest, and prompt protection would be impossible. That, in fact, is the object of the bill, and it is not to the credit either of its sponsors or of the leadership of organized labor. In effect it is an attempt to give to one class of citizens the special privilege of using force to gain their ends in controversy.

It is not an answer to this objection that the official police agencies should be sufficient to protect persons and property from violence and are relied upon in England to do so without the aid of intervention of the court of equity. Our political and social conditions are very different from those of England and it is only in case of the gravest disorders that police agencies are effective to prevent industrial violence when incited by extremists and irresponsible leaders.

Undeniably the injunction process has been abused upon occasion and we favor proper restrictions, especially to insure the right of individuals of trial by jury. But the proposed bill is not a just or reasonable measure and would not even benefit responsible organized labor.

Furthermore, no effort to restrict and reform the injunction and contempt practice of our law can be in good faith if it ignores the abuses arising under the Volstead and other dry laws.

No doubt the A. F. of L. measure leaves this evil alone in order to conciliate the dry vote, but the omission emphasizes the bill's character as a piece of class legislation and special privilege. It is not labor statesmanship to encourage legislation for class favors and privileges.

OUR REPRESENTATION ABROAD

Without personal reference, we think the appointment of an American of Dutch parentage to be United States minister to Holland is to be deprecated on principle. We are not suggesting that the appointee is not a stanch American, but if he is generally fitted to serve his country as a diplomatic representative he is more likely to serve it well in a country with which he has no ties of sentiment.

We do not ignore the advantages he derives from a knowledge of the language, history, and character of the nation to which he is accredited. They are considerable. Yet as a rule—perhaps not in this case but in most—they are offset by the emotional and intellectual partiality which consciously and unconsciously must enter into his judgment. Our foreign representation suffers from complications of this kind from which representatives of foreign countries in our country are free. The service has too many representatives who suffer from an inferiority complex in their representative capacity and are more anxious to please the important people with whom they come into contact than with their own countrymen. This weakness is bound to be accentuated when Americans of foreign birth, parentage or strong hereditary feeling are sent to the country which arouses these strong allegiances.

The case of the late Walter Page, who became more British than the king, was, of course, a rarefied ad absurdum of befuddled loyalties, but it was only an extreme illustration of the susceptibility which is a real obstruction to the development of a competent foreign representation for the United States. It should be diminished by careful distribution of representatives to relieve our diplomacy as much as is practicable of these pressures and complications.

Editorial of the Day

THE DECLINE OF FOREIGN BORROWING.
(N. Y. World)

The boom in stocks has served as a brake on foreign borrowing by the United States. It has stifled the money market and thus increased the cost of loans, and it has also diverted the appetite of investors from bonds to shares. In a tabulation of recent foreign loans publicly offered in the United States the department of commerce shows that the total during the first half of the current year was only slightly more than half of that for the corresponding period of 1928. For the second quarters of these two years the difference is even more marked; the total, exclusive of refunding, was $307,000,000 in 1928, compared with $454,000,000 in 1929.

In view of the recent criticism by certain labor leaders of foreign borrowing in this country as tending to stimulate competition from abroad and thus to depress the living standards of American wage earners, it may be worth recording that the loans to Europe, our chief industrial competitor, during the second quarter of this year were less than 4 per cent of the total foreign floatations. Approximately 35 per cent of the borrowing in this period was done by Latin America and Canada, and more than half of these loans were floated by governments. It is hard to find in such borrowing any menace either to American industrialists or to wage earners.

A LINE O' TYPE OR TWO

How to be in the line, let the quips fall where they may.

WAITING ON THE PIER.

AN EXCLUSIVE CLUB.

A T Battle Creek, Mich., there is a very aristocratic organization known as the Three Quarters Century Club. The president is for life and the club must be more than 75 years old. In less than six years this organization has been in operation than they have enrolled more than seven hundred members. Some where about five hundred members are active.

At present annual meeting they had an attendance of close to three hundred.

The meeting was presided over by Dr. J. H. Kellogg, a member and the president.

Health, healthy, rosy-cheeked and peppy in body and inventive, original, and constructive in mind. There were twelve numbers on the program, nine of which were by members of the club. A violinist was 25 years old. Three vocal soloists were nearing the 30 mark.

The woman's prize for longevity went to a lady 57 years old. That for men to a member 85 years old. The only person now a member who is over 100 years of age was a gentleman who could not attend the meeting because he was traveling.

The club meets once a week at a club headquarters which they call Sunshine center, and where they gossip, talk, laugh and have a good time generally. They have a visiting nurse who spends her time calling on the members in their homes, telling them about health habits, getting them to physicians for the relief of whatever causes their discomfort and making opportunities for social contacts.

Of all the clubs I know this is the most aristocratic and exclusive. Most social clubs refuse to applicate to prove that they have accomplished something. The applicants for membership in this club have accomplished seventy-five years of life. That at once eliminates more than 90 per cent of the population. Of one hundred babies born per year about 10 per cent succeed in meeting this requirement.

The members of this club are a well bred lot. Longevity is an inheritable quality. Of those who attain old age the major number can credit the attainment to their stock. They belong to the elect. Their parents and other forefathers were of the best stock. The members of this club are women "of the blood."

But these two conditions of membership were not all. They qualified because they were living proof that they had lived right. Some drunkards have lived to a ripe old age, and have some credit with the other members. But according to the law of averages the drunkard dies young and bad habits lead to a short life. The men and women who live properly, who eat about right, exercise about right, work about right—who have good habits—such men who women are apt to outlive those who violate the laws of hygiene. This band of aristocrats qualified on the grounds of performance as well as on that of blood.

—INHERITS BODY BUILD.

C. L. writes: Some time ago some one wrote to you asking if there was any truth in the statement that a child who was born at the age of twice its height was about 2 years. You did not answer directly, saying merely that the woman's child was small and would probably not be a very tall man.

I have been worried for over a year about my daughter's height. She was 35 inches tall at 2 years, so that would make her about 7 inches less than 6 feet when she is full grown.

She is a husky, healthy child. Neither my husband nor myself are very tall, and neither of our parents are tall except my father, who was 5 feet 11 inches.

REPLY:

In Wartini's "How to be in the line" statement it says: "Boys who have a total height of 35 inches at the age of three will attain the same at the end of their second year." This is the rule but there are many exceptions. Your daughter may be a tall child and may be inheriting her status from your father. Many children inherit body build from a grandfather rather than from a parent.

GULF WATERWAY NEEDED BY LAKE CITY INDUSTRIES

Wisconsin Business Men
See Project's Value.

BY ARTHUR EVANS.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]
Sheboygan, Wis., Aug. 22.—[Special]
—Lake ports in Wisconsin and their circumjacent industrial areas are beginning to visualize the profits they stand to gain from the Lakes to Gulf waterway.

Water transportation was the genesis of the lake shore towns.

Sheboygan is known nationally as a furniture manufacturing city, standing fifth among American cities. There are 24 plants which employ 3,800 workers. When this industry started up here many years ago lumber from Wisconsin and Michigan forests was accessible by boat. Now those forests are depleted, but the factories remain.

Lumber Shipped by Rail.

Lake shipments of lumber have been stopped and the supplies come by rail, mainly from the south. Thirty years ago fifty million board feet a year came into Sheboygan by vessel, and in 1891 a peak was struck of 108 million feet. It dropped off until in 1920 no lumber receipts by water were shown in the report of the port collector.

Now business men are beginning to discuss the possibilities the Illinois waterway will afford of carrying in lumber from the south by cheap, unbroken barge haul, and of shipping manufactured products by barge from Wisconsin direct down the Mississippi valley to Memphis and New Orleans for the south and southwest markets.

Business Men Interested.

Indicative of the attention business men are beginning to direct to the project is A. C. Hahn's opinion that industrial progress will be completed in the Illinois waterways system. Mr. Hahn is head of the Phoenix Chair company, and is of prominence in the industry.

"It is time to study the economic aspects of the Lakes to Gulf waterway," says Mr. Hahn. "Both projects are wonderful, the one to the sea by the St. Lawrence and the other by the gulf through the Chicago waterway, the Illinois waterway, and the Mississippi river. They would put Sheboygan right on the ocean. No town has been linked up more closely with water transportation than Sheboygan, for our industrial history started from our position as a harbor on the lake and accessibility to lumber supplies by boat.

Transportation Demands Growing.
"Now the situation is working back to waterways. Most of our lumber comes from the south. Memphis is the distributing center for hardwoods from Missouri, Louisiana, Arkansas, Mississippi and Tennessee. If these supplies could be put on barges and hauled direct to Sheboygan, just imagine what a difference it would make and give cheaper transportation for our finished product. It would expand our trade markets. We would undoubtedly be able to expand in the south and southwest.

"Population growth and trade increased mean growing demands for transportation. President Hoover has said that the tonnage in 1930 will be more than double what it was in 1925, and cheap waterway transportation, to my way of thinking, will not injure our railways. A few years ago we never thought we'd have trucks on the highways. They are here and are not interfering with railroads. Freight loadings are growing."

An Ideal Place to Live

comes from the south. Memphis is the distributing center for hardwoods from Missouri, Louisiana, Arkansas, Mississippi and Tennessee. If these supplies could be put on barges and hauled direct to Sheboygan, just imagine what a difference it would make and give cheaper transportation for our finished product. It would expand our trade markets. We would undoubtedly be able to expand in the south and southwest.

A few years ago we never thought we'd have trucks on the highways. They are here and are not interfering with railroads. Freight loadings are growing."

Kohler Company Uses Ships.

The part played in recent times in the growth of this region by virtue of the water haul is also shown in a recent announcement by officials of the Kohler Company that the head of which is Gov. Walker Koenig, that he builds a million dollar addition to its pottery department at Kohler village, just outside Sheboygan.

The company gets its clay from Cornwall, England, in original bottoms. Small steamers of 1,200 to 1,500 ton capacity require about thirty days to come from the English ports via the St. Lawrence to the docks at Sheboygan, where they are unloaded on trucks.

The significant thing is this: In its announcement the Kohler company said the all-water transportation of the Cornwall clay is one of the favorable factors which led to the location of the pottery in Wisconsin.

Business Men Favor Chicago.

Among business men in Sheboygan, who are interested in the fight of six lake states against Chicago's water diversion, one finds a sentiment that since the supreme court made its decision the battle ought to be closed up and the question of how much water is needed for navigation

Assemblyman Robert A. SOLDIERS GUARD SECRETS OF TINY RACING PLANES

British and Italian Teams
Arrive at Course.

MRS. MARIE VIAU.
(Pacific and Atlantic Photo.)

LONDON, Aug. 22.—[UPI]—Two thoroughly trained teams of racing aviators, British and Italian, are gathering along the Seaford course, near Calthorpe, with a third entry expected from America. Indications tonight are that the Schneider cup seaplane races next month will produce the greatest speed ever attained by man.

Royal Air force armed guards were placed outside the hangars of the British and Italian planes this evening to guard the secrets of the tiny planes, expected to make more than 350 miles an hour. British aviation circles are hopeful that Lieut. Alford Williams, American naval pilot, will be able to compete and make the cup race a three-cornered affair.

The Schneider cup races, held at Venice, were won by Lieut. S. N. Webster of England, whose fastest lap was at a speed of 284.219 miles an hour.

No Hope for Sea Flyers.

New York, Aug. 22.—[Special]—With more than two days and nights passed since the two youthful Swiss ocean flyers, Oscar Kasser and Kurt Luescher, should have been sighted on American shores, the waning hopes, which a number of their countrymen to keep vigil at Roosevelt field hour upon hour, were all but abandoned today.

Coste Says Nothing, Does Nothing.

LE BOURGET, France, Aug. 22.—(UPI)—Dieudonne Coste after two days of saying one thing and doing either another or nothing, tonight took a slightly different tack by saying nothing and doing nothing.

The French aviator has had aviation circles in a whirl of excitement by his record flight and his going to fly to Tokyo to New York, around the world or simply to a new world straightaway distance record. He gave them a rest tonight by taking his airplane back to Villacoublay airfield from which he could not start to do any one of those things because of its small size.

In any case, weather conditions appear unfavorable for a long flight and it was generally interpreted that the return to Villacoublay meant indefinite postponement of any flight.

German Wins European Flight.

PARIS, Aug. 22.—(AP)—The German Pilot Morzik tonight was declared winner by the French Aero club of the "round Europe" reliability flight. There were originally 80 entries in the flight recently concluded. Other awards await the result of investigations of charges that several competitors flew over forbidden areas in Italy.

AVIATION NOTES

Russell Moosman and C. E. Stelle, co-pilots of the plane, "Chicago—We Will," declared last night that they will take off this morning from Sky Harbor in their third attempt to exceed the 17½ day non-stop endurance flight record. Their official starting time will be noon, with the intent to take the air as early as 9 o'clock. Their time, however, will not be counted before noon.

Twenty pounds will be the limit of free baggage allowed travelers over the regular air passenger lines hereafter. This limitation was decided upon yesterday at a conference of air traffic men representing 21 commercial passenger and mail lines held at the Palms house. Heretofore only 25 pounds of free baggage was allowed by the lines. Additional fare will be charged for excess weight. It is expected that the transport companies will limit the amount of baggage that each person may carry to 50 pounds.

Roosevelt Field, N. Y., Aug. 22.—(AP)—Capt. Roscoe Turner and his three passengers prepared today for a return trip to the Pacific coast in their flight to demonstrate the feasibility of one-day transcontinental air passenger service. They arrived here last night from Glandale, Calif., having made a cross country flight in 19 hours and 53 minutes, with three refueling stops. The return flight will be made tomorrow.

BERLIN, Aug. 22.—"I was in business, call to Berlin," said R. F. Filsinger, New York business man, stated tonight. "So I phoned the Jochannensburg Flying club and asked them to supply a plane and a pilot. We flew the 8,000 miles in 105 hours. We are now back here. Normally, it should have taken forty days traveling." The pilot was an Englishman, R. R. Bentley.

The first commercial flight between Milwaukee and Grand Rapids, Mich., will be started by the Kohler Aviation corporation of Chicago on Aug. 31. John B. Kohler, head of the firm, informed the Milwaukee Association of Commerce yesterday. Four flights daily will be made by amphibian planes.

CROWD AT FAIR SEES GOVERNOR'S BEST POKER FACE

Emmerson May Be Neutral on Senate Race.

Springfield, Ill., Aug. 22.—[Special]—Gov. Emmerson went through Governor's day at the state fair today without a wrinkling of the brow or a winking of the eye that might have indicated where he will stand in the 1930 primary and election.

The governor led a more or less formal procession of automobiles to the fair grounds, and was the hero of a more or less perfunctory reception in the main box opposite the judges' stand, but so far as tipping off political observers he was entirely uncommunicative.

Neutrality is Expected.

The governor, as he appears in the stand today, likes everybody. Betting barred on the races at the state track, but odds were laid today that he will be neutral in the race for the United States senatorship, which apparently lies between the incumbent, Charles S. Deneen, and Mrs. Ruth Hanna McCormick, widow of the man whom Deneen beat for the place six years ago.

John Kirby of Petersburg, Ill., announced his candidacy for nomination as United States senator at the Democratic primary. He calls himself an anti-Smith, anti-Raskob Democrat.

William Henry Harrison Miller, who was director of registration and education in the Small régime, announced his candidacy for the post of congressman at a larger. Mrs. McCormick is expected to vacate the post to oppose Deneen.

Mrs. McCormick Expects Prize.

Mrs. McCormick arrived today and spent the entire day with her highly prized exhibits in the livestock section of the exposition. So far as the body of an unidentified man was found yesterday in a shed at the rear of 720 South State street.

And in addition there were the friends of Len Small who insist that the former governor has a chance if the battle develops into a Deneen-McCormick contest.

But Gov. Emmerson, who is supposed to hold the deciding hand in this match, is keeping his own counsel.

F. E. Nelson, and the younger group of professionals from Meridian Hills at Indiana started the deluge of under par with 32—36—68 early in the Three scores took the edge off golf later in the day, when Walsh of Appleton, Wisconsin, 38—49, and Henry Cusick, New York Italian, duplicated that 36—32—69. Walsh, playing with Hutchinson, who scored 37, went two over par on the holes, both missing short putts.

Both Cusick and Hutchinson, who were shadowed by Gene Sarazen, who fifteen minutes later with 30 and all of them were eclipsed by Armour outscored the field.

BROKE 18 MONTHS AGO, COSDEN HAS $15,000,000 NOW

Without Investing Cent He Recoups Oil Losses.

New York, Aug. 22.—(Special)—Within 18 months of the time he re-entered the oil business on borrowed capital, Joshua S. Cosden, once one of the commanding figures in Wall street, has rebuilt the fortune which he lost when control of his former company was wrested from him in the stock market. Persons familiar with his affairs today place his present wealth at $15,000,000, and he revealed, for the first time, the story of his comeback.

Without investing a dollar himself, it was explained, Mr. Cosden had come into possession of half of the outstanding common share capital of a company rated as being worth in excess of $35,000,000. This company, the Cosden Oil corporation, which is the vehicle on which he has returned to power, has emerged as one of the most aggressive of the younger independents in the southwest. Besides the 50 per cent interest which he owns in that company, he has substantial holdings in other enterprises.

Organized in February, 1928.

The Cosden Oil company was organized in February, 1928, with a capital consisting of $3,000,000 of 7 per cent preferred and 10,000 shares of no par common stock.

The preferred stock was bought by a Wall street group that included friends of Mr. Cosden, who had confidence in him and who were willing to back him in an effort to recoup his fortunes.

For each share of preferred purchased, his backers received a share of common as a bonus. At that time it was considered as having no value. For some time after the company was formed there was no market in it. Several months ago, after the company had demonstrated its earning power, the stock was listed on the New York stock exchange. At the close, it stood at $5.

Mr. Cosden, in obtaining the financial support of the Wall street group, agreed to give his services as president of the company without salary.

He took none of the preferred stock and did not put a single dollar into the enterprise. There was an agreement, however, that he was to receive one share of common stock for every share of such stock that was issued.

Increased to $30,000 shares.

The outstanding common share capital was subsequently increased to 250,000 shares so that the total no par amount to 150,000 shares, which have an open market value today of about $12,000,000. The stock did not cost him a penny.

His backers have profited handsomely, but not to the same extent that he has since a considerable part of the common stock has been distributed to the public through trading on the curb.

Mr. Cosden, his friends said, plunged into his new enterprise with tremendous energy. He gave up his home in New York and moved to the oil fields. He spent months in the oil fields looking for desirable properties that could be bought at low prices.

Capital of $1,000,000 proved sufficient for Mr. Cosden's purposes and before the end of last year he had assembled extensive producing properties and had succeeded in knitting them into a well integrated organization that even included a first class refinery. The company is now producing around 15,000 barrels of crude oil daily and is carrying on an aggressive drilling campaign.

Announce Formation of Ansbacher-Siegle Corp.

(Chicago Tribune Press Service)

New York, Aug. 22.—Plans for a merger of the G. C. Siegle corporation, the former a manufacturer of fine colors and the latter a producer of agricultural insecticides, as well as a maker of dry colors, will be submitted to stockholders Sept. 16. The combined companies, to be known as Ansbacher-Siegle corporation, will comprise a nucleus for a forthcoming combination of large proportions. Dry color manufacture, although an important industry, has been at low ebb for years, according to manufacturers. Ansbacher-Siegle will have two classes of voting stock; 12,000 shares of common. The former will be entitled to preferences in dividends of $2.49 a share and, in liquidation, to $40 a share. It will be convertible share for every share.

BROKERS' LOANS RISE UPWARD TO DIZZY HEIGHTS

Climb $133,000,000
During Week.

By O. A. MATHER.

After a moderate recession last week, brokers' loans again soared to a new peak this week. The weekly report issued by the federal reserve board yesterday showed that the New York member banks now are lending $133,000,000 to brokers, which marks an increase of $13,000,000 in the last week and puts the total $45,000,000 above the previous peak established in Aug. 6.

Just as the break in the stock market ten days ago resulted in such demands $65,000,000 last week, so the recovery of prices since then has brought the amount of credit devoted to speculation to new high levels. The current figure stands at $100,000,000, a year's rise.

The rapid launching of investment trusts in the last few weeks appears to be playing an important part in furnishing additional funds to the stock market and at the same time holding call loan rates down. While the current increase in brokers' loans partly reflects the issuance of about $100,000,000 in new securities, including investment trusts, in the last week, it would seem that the investment trusts have been turning much of their capital into stock market loans.

Corporation Loans Rise.

For example, the detail of the brokers' loan statement shows that corporations and other lenders were entirely responsible for the additional credit turned into the stock market. Their lendings were boosted by $134,000,000 and now stand at $1,492,000,000 above a year ago. The investment trusts would fall in this classification.

On the other hand, the banks with draw funds from the stock market. The New York banks reduced their own loans by $39,000,000 and interior banks cut their loans by $23,000,000, although respectively these have lending $17,000,000 and $27,000,000 more than a year ago.

Further evidence of the efforts of the banks to the preserve their credit to hold stock market loans down and at the same time furnish credit for commercial purposes was given in the weekly report of the federal reserve system, issued last night. But credit is still dealt out cautiously and sparingly.

The member banks reduced their borrowings at the reserve banks by $1,610,000, bringing the total down to $86,375,000. The reserve banks added $4,252,000 in bankers' acceptances but sold $696,000 of government securities, so that the release of additional credit was wholly moderate.

Gold reserves increased $15,749,000, partly as a result of gold imports of $10,700,000, and total reserves expanded $15,996,000. Deposits declined $85,929,000, but note circulation increased $75,000. The ratio of reserves to liabilities rose to 75.5 per cent, compared with 74.6 per cent last week.

No Changes in Rate.

The New York reserve bank made no change in its 6 per cent rediscount rate yesterday and the Chicago bank is not expected to advance its 5 per cent rate today. The report of the New York bank showed a decline of $1,220,000 in its loans to member banks and an increase of $2,620,000 in bankers' acceptances. The city bank reduced their borrowings by $47,000. Total rediscounts now stand at $23,147,000. Deposits declined $14,818,000. STEWART WARNER PROFITS ARE AHEAD OF THREE PREVIOUS YEARS

Sees Gradual Change in Bank System of U. S.

BY SCRUTATOR.

Changes that are little known and little appreciated by the public are taking place in the banking system of the United States.

For the last two years the financial news has contained at frequent intervals the announcement of mergers of big city banks. Through this method certain institutions have been brought to the point where they have total resources ranging from one to two billion dollars. The largest of them will be the big banks of England, with their numerous branches.

These imagination compelling concentrations have not escaped notice. It is the program of the banking industry to bring the hitherto independent units in smaller towns that have had little notoriety. Not the least remarkable thing about it, according to Craig B. Hazlewood, president of the American Bankers' association and vice president of the First National bank of Chicago, is the change of attitude among the unit bankers themselves, who were vigorously opposed to the merger, as well as to all forms of group and chain banking.

"Three years ago," he said, "at the annual convention of the A. B. A., it would have been hard to find a corporal's guard who would not vote for resolutions condemning chain or group banks. Now there are still fifty to sixty per cent who hold the same views, but the others are looking for a group system without much misgiving.

Offers Solution.

"In Minnesota, in North Dakota, in Utah, in Idaho, in Iowa and Michigan and on the Pacific coast, the grouping of banks is going along at a rapid rate. The group system, in my opinion, offers a solution for many of the troubles of small banks and would be to the advantage of the public. Under it the banks retain their close personal relations with their customers and at the same time gain the supervision that means better banking.

"The Canadian banking system, highly centralized, takes too much of the responsibility, especially in making loans, from the local representatives of the central bank. When a customer wants a loan in some western town, he presents his statement and the local bank executive considers it. But if his verdict is favorable, it does not mean that it will be approved by the central office in the east. The tendency in his case is to rubber stamp banking, to the recommendation of loans only when they are amply secured by collateral, and to take no action on border line requests.

Formal Rules.

They do not require an O. K. on every loan by the central organization. The local managers have a set of general rules and so long as they keep within them they have full authority. Traveling auditors keep a close watch on the operations and the central managers are able to call a halt when a start in the wrong direction is made. The best feature of the unit bank is to keep an eye on each to insure good management added."

These views are not those of some other Chicago bankers. The latter oppose any change on the grounds that too much concentration of banking power will result, that speculation in bank stocks may be carried too far, or that city banks will be forced, whether they wish to or not, to go into some form of gain control over smaller banks to keep from losing accounts of these institutions.

Whatever the objections, it is believed that a report being prepared for the controller of the currency, which will be presented at the American Bankers' association meeting in October, will show a striking movement toward the grouping of smaller banks. The movement began about two years ago, but it has been accelerated in the last year.

Doherty Interests Survey Proposed Chicago Pipe Line

St. Joseph, Mo., Aug. 22.—(AP)—A survey for a proposed 1,000 mile pipe line from Texas natural gas fields to Chicago, passing 25 miles north of St. Joseph, is being made by the Henry L. Doherty interests. The proposed pipe line would cost $100,000,000. A surveying crew now is at work in Gentry, Mo., and will work westward.

Another crew is said to be working west of Chicago and another gang is to start from Amarillo, Tex., the southern terminus of the line. The Mississippi river would be passed near Keokuk, Ill.

LOSSES ARE FEW IN INSTALLMENT PLAN SAVING

With the national income approximately $90,000,000,000 the people of the United States spend about $40,000,000,000 a year in retail establishments and out of this approximately $4,500,000,000 goes into installment buying, according to Leslie C. Harbison, president of the Household Finance corporation.

"Two-thirds of all dealer automobile sales," he said, "are made on credit—one-half of all credit sales are made out of department store sales. Yet ultimately all almost do pay. The average loss of a large group of houses revealed that losses were as follows:

"Motor car sales, open account, 0.3 per cent; installment payments, 0.4 per cent; department stores, charge accounts, 0.4 per cent; installments, 1.1 per cent; grocery stores, 0.6 per cent. Working men are making more and more to pay their trade bills, but by doing so are maintaining their credit standings."

26 MEN RESCUED AFTER THEY FLEE A RED HOT SHIP

Liner Picks Up Crew of Ocean Tramp.

New York, Aug. 22.—(Special)—Twenty-six men who escaped death on the red hot decks of a battered old ocean tramp today were picked up far out at sea by the Dollar liner President Harrison, homeward bound after a round the world voyage.

There were no details of the rescue to be had from the radio news of Capt. J. H. Benson of the President Harrison gave ample evidence that another interesting chapter had been written in the history of American navigation.

There had been apprehension concerning the fate of the crew of the German steamer Quintus since yesterday. The ship herself, a swaying old veteran on her way to the junk heap was sighted afire at sea late yesterday afternoon by the freighter Yalou of the American export line.

The Quintus then, 1,100 miles west of Nootka, on the Yalou radioed she was so consumed by flames that no person could live aboard. There was no sign, then, of her crew.

Capt. Benson's message today was given out by Howard Lewis, assistant traffic manager of the Dollar lines. Position was not stated.

Captain Tents of Rescue.

Captain Benson's message follows:

"On Aug. 21, at 2:45 a.m. we sighted the ship. She was burning and the course was changed immediately in the direction the hull was sighted. We steamed for ten minutes and again sighted the ship, which proved to be a life boat full of men. The boat had distinct smoke. We stopped the engines, swam around and made our port on the lee side. The boat with 12 men came alongside at 4:30 p. m. At 4:30 p. m. the crew from boat No. 1, together with their gear, was safely on board the President Harrison."

"The second officer, Jorgenson, who was in charge of the boat, informed me that there was one more boat with the captain and 12 men miles to the southward, and before we were finished with the first boat we sighted the second boat. The second boat, at 4:30 p. m., boat No. 1 was scuttled and we made full ahead for No. 2. Then Boat is Scuttled.

"At 5:30 p. m. we stopped with port side to lee. Boat No. 2 came alongside at 5:40 p. m.; the captain with 12 men and their gear and navigating instruments were soon on our deck. The boat was scuttled by the engine room in all air tanks and the bottom of the boat. At 6:30 p. m. we steamed full ahead for New York.

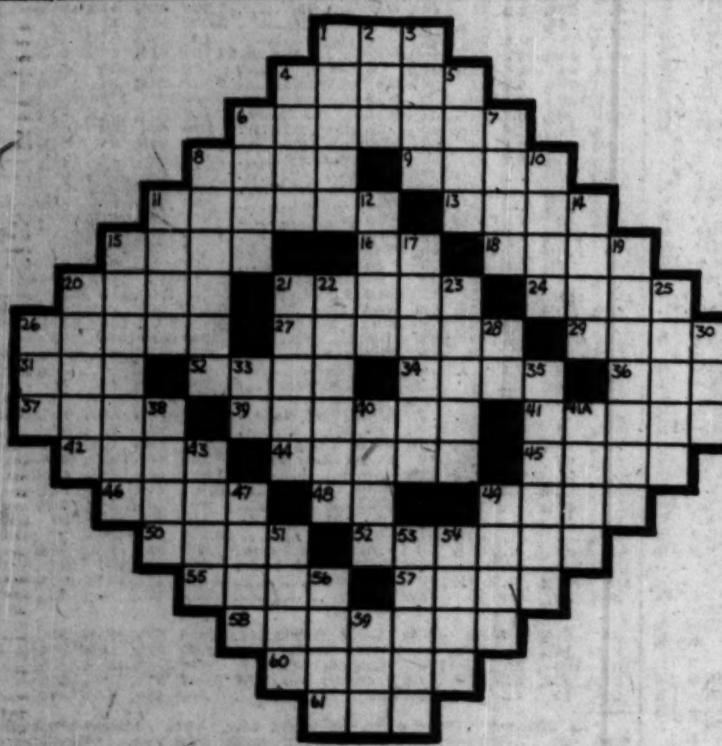

"The rescued crew are from the German steamer Quintus, bound for Genoa from Norfolk. It sprang a leak on the afternoon of Aug. 18 and after a fruitless attempt by the master and crew to save her they were forced to abandon ship at 3:45 a. m. Aug. 19. All they all proved to be in fair condition but were all tired out by the long period in the lifeboats."

"President Harrison will dock New York Saturday."

SALLY'S GANG ENJOYS
BIG DAY VIEWING
"THE ARGYLE CASE"

BY SALLY JOY BROWN.

Murky skies, threat of rain—ever the weather was providing a stirring setting as we gathered for our party to see Thomas Meighan in "The Argyle Case" at the Chicago theater yesterday. Just a glance around and we got our first shiver—which was all as it should be!

And my girl and boy guests were all set as critics, to decide who'd like Thomas Meighan—for "The Argyle Case" is his first talking picture.

"This picture has a whiz in H. B. Warner, you know—Tom will have to step out to beat him!"

Say, he couldn't have been three years with Warfield if his voice wasn't right—he'll bowl you over."

Go on, you never can tell! It's just like radio—punk voices get good and good voices go bunks lots of times. I think that's the reason that I guess about it beforehand. Just a few minutes saw us all seated, and immediately the picture began. That settled all arguments—both about Thomas Meighan and the picture. His very first words let us know he's in the first rank of "talkie" stars—and the very first minutes of the story has us sitting on the edges of our seats.

A rich old man done to death, while he was threatening to kill his unseen assailant over to the police—John Darrow, his son, and Lila Lee, his ward, both under suspicion. Enter Thomas Meighan as the private detective who comes in to help. Can't even though he suspects he can't imagine the suspense? Then H. B. Warner, in one of his greatest performances, as the lawyer, Zasu Pitts as the housekeeper, Bert Roach playing the fat but efficient detective—but I can't spoil things for others by telling the story.

The fourth of the pictures came balancing on "Katy's" great stage presentation—"Sea Shore Follies," easily one of the best of the summer!

There was laugh after laugh for the antics of Ed and Morton Beck, the life-size men who are clowns in between times; rounds of applause for the dancing of the Dave Gould girls and boys, and the thrilling acrobatics of Prosper and Maret; while nothing could have been cuter than the two Darling Twins.

So it was a glorious day while it lasted.

Here's a Reducing Method That Reduces the Health, Too

A correspondent reports a state of weakness bordering on ill-health as a result of taking Epsom salt baths for reducing. For three weeks she pursued the course with daily treatments. To understand how very near a state bordering on ill-health one may become after such a procedure, one has but to realize that these baths do in to bring on weight loss by heavy perspiration. The baths are taken in hot water and the addition of the salts superinduces perspiration, which together with the wool blanket sweat afterward, may indeed leave you in a weakened condition.

It ought to be classified among the bad reducing systems and not to be pursued by persons of common sense. The method used is to put from one to three pounds of Epsom salts in the bath, the hotter the water the better. The bather stays in for fifteen minutes, adding hot water as the bath cools and as a higher temperature can be maintained.

Afterward, to bed in warm blankets, remaining there as long as the profuse flow of perspiration continues. It is true that people have been known to sweat out three to five pounds at a time this way, but the repeated use of these sweats is dangerous.

I recall a case of a year ago where a woman followed this procedure and after her wanted loss of weight, the tissues in her face and neck had sagged so that she looked fifteen years older. Her health wasn't any too good, anyway, and in her case the treatment induced by the baths was close to suicide.

People with weak hearts, or whose organs are not in perfect condition, should never consider the method, and those in normal condition may find better, more comfortable and healthier systems by which to attain the desirable figure.

Women going in for Turkish baths and sweating the top strenuously meet with similar experience. A Turkish bath or a good home "sweat bath" as often as once a month would prove beneficial to a great many, but the daily pursuit or three weekly of the habit is terrifically weakening.

False Modesty Is

Mrs Gladys Huntington

A book on the care of babies by Miss Carolyn Conant Van Blarcom, a noted authority on the subject, can be had at The Tribune Public Service office, 1 South Dearborn street, for 50 cents, or by mail for 60 cents. Two booklets by Mrs. Bevan, one on "Prayers and Graces for Children" and another on "Books to Be Read to Children or by Them," will be sent free on receipt of a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

There was a group on the porch composed of one family with a little girl, and another family with an older boy. The children were meeting for the first time.

The father of the little girl was one of those men who are eternally eye-cracking. When she came running up to him she had just shed her shoe and socks to go in wading. "Come on," she said to her father, dragging at his hand, "come on down to the beach."

He looked down at her. "Bess," he said, "Bess, aren't you ashamed—look at yourself, you are ashamed in front of Dick?"

"Ashamed," you thought, "ashamed of what?" And then you realized that he was coyly teasing his little daughter for her bare legs and tucked up skirts that Dick could see. Ugh—it was really rather horrible! I hope it passed in the boy's head, but the little girl was probably already a victim of such obnoxious joking.

When you think about the hell start they have to neutralize, it's amazing that children grow up to be natural men and women as they do.

You might think with the cult of bareness that has so many followers, this summer, that a certain amount of normal accustomedness to our bodies would result. Well, I suppose it does, somewhat, but I think it has had a more lasting effect on parents than it has on people—if you don't mind the temporary distinction. An unbelievably large number of fathers and mothers still have an angle which makes them do things with the manner or the actual words of, "It's all right now—nobody's looking—come here where no one can see you."

Of course we have to regard con-

DORIS BLAKE ANSWERS
Actions Belies Words.

Dear Miss Blake: The boy I love also goes out with another girl, and says he cannot forget her, but tries to forget her if she is brought up with such distorted ideas?

You notice the mistakes that parents make along this line more in the summer than in the winter, because of the opportunity for freedom, beach and lake and country present. Of course the mistakes are all due primarily to the lack of naturalness or frankness in the feelings of parents or nurses, themselves. But it makes you feel sorry when you see the chances for a right start being lost through wrong handling.

Dear Miss Blake: A girl went to a party with a fellow who got drunk, and she got drunk, too. She has since then gone out twice with the fellow who got drunk. What do you think of the girl? HANK.

If it were a first offense, it is only fair she should give him another chance, don't you think?

It's Grand to Be a Good Sport, but It's Not Alluring
BY DORIS BLAKE.

Florence raises the question about whether it pays to be a woman who is always on the square.

Florence is one of those girls who attends to her club duties conscientiously and as a reward for her hours of labor earns catty criticism from members who wouldn't lift a hand to help. She is the kind of girl who defends another girl even though the latter may not be deserving of her defense. She wouldn't attempt to win another girl's beau away, no matter what encouragement she got from said beau. She wouldn't repeat an unkind tale. She pays her debts, dues and obligations of whatever kind promptly. In fact, she has all the virtues that entitle one to membership in the good sportsmanship club.

For the greater development of sportsmanship among the sex that could use more of it advantageously, I suppose one should urge Florence into keeping up the good standard; that some day, from somewhere will come the reward or rewards to which she is entitled.

But can any woman viewing her own sex conscientiously I and the other say that good sportsmanship is a paying virtue? She may admit it a good one and a comforting one to sisters who are working at the same game. But it is pretty hard in the face of evidence to the contrary to believe that what is commonly understood as good sportsmanship is a profitable virtue to a woman.

The women who are "good sports," known as square and on the level among their intimates, the women who never try to rong on their "Dutch-treat" bills, women who are conscientious about their debts, bridge, election or otherwise, women who do their duty when life deals them a bad one, may get admiration, but they don't get the rewards in male devotion, at least, that a less conscientious sister takes as her right.

Take the woman who plays the good sportsmanship role when another woman says she can give her husband greater happiness. If she makes the chivalrous gesture, she may be referred to as a fine woman, but the other woman gets the "pickings," may I say? No, I can't classify good sportsmanship among the alluring qualities in women. Fine, noble qualities—but not, in the parlance of the day, paying ones.
